Trust and Respect cannot be Learned, Purchased or Acquired.
They can only be Earned.

Every deed, every word will determine the level of trust you gain with those around you. So be sure to do what you say and say what you intend on doing. Integrity and honesty will always take you a long way in life.

Message from Mr. Mohan Lal Grero Founder

"You have to accept whatever comes and the only important thing is that you meet it with courage and with the best that you have to give."

- Eleanor Roosevelt

I once came across an interesting article. It stated that the human spirit ranges across a truly amazing diversity of experiences and emotions - the highest peaks and the lowest valleys. One minute we merge in awe with the compassionate creative universal force, and the next minute the imperfections of our human existence focus us towards another aspect of life.

It went on to describe how, at one moment we are loving, and then hateful, in the next. Patient and calm sometimes, harried by urgency at other times. We move from understanding to self-absorbed, re-assuring to sarcastic, generous to greedy, trusting to jealous. At times we will comfort. At times we will snap. We may show glimpses of originality and then we'd be stuck in a rut. We could be thankful and yet needy, forgiving, yet vengeful. We find ourselves nurturing our bodies and then stuffing ourselves with fast food. We are joyful and suffering minutes apart. All of this tells us one thing. We always have a choice. We can choose to be loving instead of being hateful. We can choose to be understanding and patient. We can put away greed and jealousy and replace it with generosity and trust. We may not be able to control everything that happens to us, but we can certainly control how we react to it. Let us learn to always see the good in people. We all have our weaknesses. But we also have a lot of good in us. When we appreciate the good in people and get into the habit of praising them even for the slightest of good deeds, we will send a positive vibration across the universe. Imagine if everyone around you practiced this. Wouldn't the world be a much more cheerful place?
