Message from Mr. Mohan Lal Grero Founder

Sunil was a friendly old man of few words. He had developed a limp over the years. One day he spotted a hand bill advertising for a volunteer to water the community garden. He quietly signed up.

One day he had just finished his watering when three gang members approached him. He ignored their attempt to intimidate him by saying, "would you like a drink from the hose?" They pushed him on the ground, stole his retirement watch and wallet and fled.

The caretaker ran up to him and helped him up, "Sunil, are you hurt?". He only sighed: "Just some rowdy kids. I hope they'll straighten out someday" He then picked up the hose and started watering again. The caretaker was concerned: "Sunil, what are you doing?" "I must finish watering. It's been very dry lately," came the soft replay.

The gangsters returned. Sunil offered them a drink again and this time they took his hose and just drenched him head to toe in cold water. Satisfied of his humiliation they ran down the street laughing. Sunil watched them only for a moment and returned to his watering.

Months later, tilling a patch of garden, Sunil was taken aback by someone approaching him. Moving back he stumbled and fell. Turning, to face the stranger he saw that it was the leader of the gang. Sunil braced himself for another attack.

But the gangster spoke softly: "I'm not gonna hurt you". He offered his hand and helped Sunil up. He offered a crumpled bag to Sunil. "This is the stuff we stole from you. Even the money is there". Sunil was speechless. The man continued: "No matter how many times we picked on you, instead of yelling and fighting back, you tried to give us a drink. You didn't hate us for hating you. You showed love instead. I couldn't sleep after we stole your things, so I brought it back. Thanks for showing me the way".

Many years later when Sunil died there was another hand bill: "Person needed to care for Sunil's garden." The hand bill went unnoticed until one day the reformed gangster said to the caretaker: "This is my job if you'll have me".
